

GE Healthcare

Laboratory filtration newsletter

June 2017

Lab filtration news from GE Healthcare

On-demand webinar – Sample preparation: the forgotten dimension in HPLC

Watch this on-demand webcast to learn how to optimize sample prep for a fully developed HPLC method. Highlights:

- fundamentals and techniques common to nearly all sample preparation methods
- key points in method optimization
- pitfalls for each technique

Watch now »

Latest blog – Along the highway: using PM2.5 to track traffic emissions

Measuring PM 2.5 particles has become a key point of interest for the US EPA. Read our latest blog post to find out how one analyst, Tyler, is streamlining the testing process.

Read more »

Featured article – Standardize to reduce variation

When your lab filtration products are working smoothly, life is simple. But when your workflow is interrupted due to inaccurate results...things can get messy.

Read more »

Whatman™ filter paper in mining quality control

Mining industries routinely test the content of different metals in ore samples. The use of high-quality, dedicated filter paper in sample